Architect: high school design is an efficient one

■ The 'small learning center' concept is not the culprit in campus's rising costs -- the big problem is rising construction cost, argues designer

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Estimates for building the new high school in West Sacramento have doubled in the past year and a half, to around $144 million. But are the district's plans to center the 2,400-student campus around "small learning communities" to blame for the new financing problem?

"My answer to that is 'no,'" said Brian Meyers of the DLR Group, which serves as architect for the project.

Meyers told the News-Ledger that that the construction of four "small learning center" buildings to create schools-within-a-school has not led to "fluff" in the design. That has been the charge by some residents unsure how a $52 million school bond, some developer fee money and other district funds, and a limited amount of state help can combine to pay the bill on the new school.

Among the critics is Judy Santiago, who told the Washington Unified School District's school board last Thursday:

"We voted for a comprehensive high school, not a Taj Mahal with all the bells and whistles."

Another speaker to the school board was Larry Langford, who criticized the district's consideration of bringing a coffeehouse to the campus, a library that would serve community members, and a membership-based fitness center.

"That sounds like 'fluff' to me," said Langford. "We need to throw out the 'small learning center' idea. We need to go to neighboring school districts and get their plans and build what we voted to build."

But architect Meyers said the "small learning center" or "SLC" idea isn't the culprit in the escalating costs of the school planned for Jefferson Blvd. and Linden Rd. in Southport.

"The fact of the matter is that trying to house 2,400 kids on a campus in the neighborhood of 300,000 square feet today costs what it costs," Meyers told the News-Ledger. "Right now, the cost of building a 300,000 square foot building is anywhere from $80-90,000 to $95,000."

"The construction industry right now is what really is driving this," added Meyers.

But does the SLC model require too many square feet, or other "luxuries"?

"The facility we designed exceeds the standards for efficiency when it comes to the number of square feet per student," answered Meyers. "At Rosemont High School, which we designed, our square foot per student was in excess of 130 per student. This one is down to 120 per student.

Meyers added that some in West Sacramento seem to think that because they see some types of space "duplicated" in different parts of the design, there must be inefficiency.

"As I understand from public comments, there's a perception that this 'common space' in each SLC is part of the 'over-design.' But the common space has been pulled out of the space that would be built if it were a (traditional) comprehensive school. For example, spaces for dining are in the SLCs. But the square footage of dining has been reduced for the (common) dining area, and spilled out to that space that supports multi-use in the SLCs. It's the same amount of square feet."

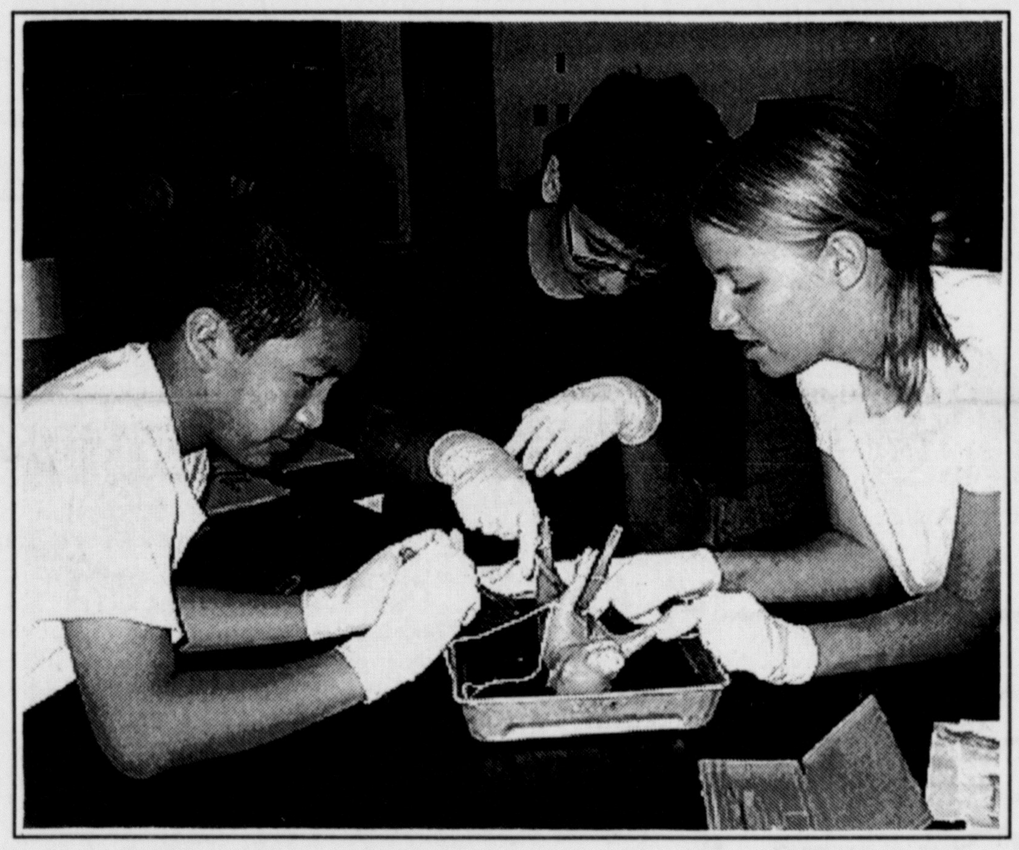

Meyers also said that the four planned SLC buildings could be changed to a different style of high school campus later – for example, if teaching by the "small learning community" model falls out of favor.

"It also lends itself to be used for four grade-level buildings, such as freshman, sophomore, junior and senior buildings," said Meyers. "Or it could be divided into curriculum-based buildings, such as an English department, math, or science-type division. And the common areas are designed to be very flexible spaces."

The district's "bond oversight committee" is scheduled to again discuss the revenue troubles facing the project at a public meeting this evening at 6 p.m. at the Washington Unified School District boardroom, 930 Westacre Road.

Golden State students try dissection & take biology field trips

Golden State Middle School held a "Math and Science Academy" this month for 69 students. The academy's activities included field trips for some students to Bodega Bay Marine Biology Lab, to the UC Davis School of Medicine, and to UCD's Hospital of Veterinary Medicine.

The academy was co-sponsored by UC Davis and funded with help from a $30,240 grant from Pacific Gas & Electric Company to cover teachers' salaries, materials and field trip transportation.

The voluntary academy stressed algebra, geometry and biology skills. Activities involved dissection of a giant octopus by marine biology students, and dissection of a baby pig.

It was the first time the academy concentrated at one school instead of bringing students from the region to UC Davis.

School board approves raise for administrators

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The Washington Unified School District's school board voted 4-0 last week to approve a ten-percent pay hike for principals and other administrators.

Jackson Parham, the WUSD's contracted attorney, told board members he had been asked to perform a "benchmark survey" comparing salaries of administrators in West Sacramento to salaries paid in comparable districts that hire from the same regional pool of applicants. The request came from Superintendent Patrick Campbell. Districts used for comparison included Natomas, Dixon, Davis, Folsom-Cordova, Sacramento City, Lodi, Rocklin, Grant and Elk Grove, added Parham.

"Our salary was close to the bottom," said Parham. "Periodically, Natomas was below us."

He gave an example:

"What we found was that for a high school principal, our beginning salary was $72,000, and our highest point was $92,000. The range (among other districts) at the top was $104-$105,000, and the median was $82,000."

He suggested that the district maintain the "relationships" of pay rates between its administrators, while bringing all administrators' pay up.

"Our recommendation to you is we establish the median as being the target – a target is something you shoot for, it's not something you are committed to. And I ask that you raise the salaries across the board by ten percent."

> 'We are not recommending you go to the top of the heap (in terms of salaries). 'We're recommending you put yourself in the middle of the heap so you're at least in the game.'
> -- Attorney Jackson Parham, who spearheaded a salary comparison of school district administrators

That raise should become effective October 1, he suggested.

Parham said the raises were necessary to improve Washington Unified's ability to hire good administrators.

"It's very difficult to solve problems without money. . . We have had in this district some people who were not the world's best, and some who were the world's best. We are making our recommendation on how to compete best in the marketplace. We are not recommending you go to the top of the heap – we're recommending you put yourself in the middle of the heap so you're at least in the game."

The study presented by Parham did not include projected long-term costs or an analysis of the cost of benefits presented by different districts.

School board member David Westin said that "for the most part, I believe these (raises) are probably justified, if only because administrators on site have a big impact on student achievement." But "we should have had a board workshop in advance of this approval to look at the big picture."

"I think this would be money well spent," added board member Mary Leland. "We need good leadership – it's a trickle-down effect."

Westin and Leland joined fellow board members Kevin Jones and Dave Farmer in voting for the raises; board member Barry Kalar was absent.

District buys a dress

Superintendent reimbursed for reimbursing family for prom dress

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

West Sacramento's school district has bought a red prom dress.

The purchase follows a small storm of controversy surrounding this year's prom at River City High School. A student was told that wearing the dress would violate the district's policy forbidding the wearing of "gang" colored clothing to school events. The girl had bought the dress to wear to the prom.

School officials said "no" to the dress, so the girl and her guardian (the student's grandmother) took the question to Superintendent Patrick Campbell, who reversed the decision. After that reversal, he told the News-Ledger:

"I feel I may have made the wrong decision because I didn't have all the information (about the color policy)."

The dress was "maroon" or "burgundy" instead of the more notorious "red," and Campbell said he didn't know the darker colors were also prohibited from school functions.

Campbell met again with the girl's guardian, and arranged a compromise while technically not revoking his decision to allow the dark red dress. Instead, he reimbursed the family for the cost of the dress so they could get one of a different color.

"He said (my grandaughter) could also wear the maroon one too," said Sandra Keylon, the girl's guardian, in a May interview. "He's a very nice man."

After paying for the dress out of his pocket, Campbell has since submitted a reimbursement request to the district to get paid back for the cost of the dress, though – raising the ire of at least one resident.

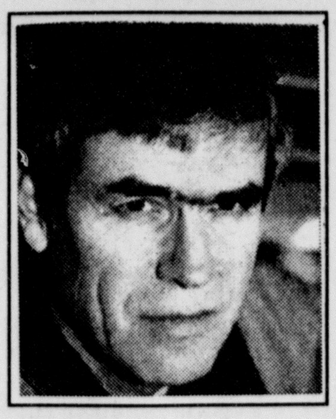

"How can you justify paying $339 for a dress out of public funds, let alone from (school) lottery money?" complained resident Dani Langford to the school board on Thursday.

Langford did not receive a comment from the board or superintendent in response to her question.

Superintendent Campbell did not immediately return phone calls from the News-

Are you a generous tipper, or a miserly one?

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

I was reading the Sunday Sacramento Bee the other morning and in the business section was a really interesting article on the subject of tipping. As someone who has always had a problem with knowing just how much to tip a person (especially a waiter at a restaurant), it was nice to see that there are actually plenty of accepted ways to go about doing it, depending of course upon whether you are generous or cheap. Anyway, by reading the article I learned that one good way to tip (if you believe in generous tipping) is to simply take ten percent of the bill (which even someone who is mathematically challenged like me can do), round it off upwards to the nearest dollar, and then double it. For instance, say the bill was $55.50. All I would have to do is figure out ten percent of that in my head ($5.55), round off to the nearest dollar ($6) and then multiply that number by two ($12).

"No, no, no," my wife said when I told her what my new tipping technique would be, "nowadays you are simply supposed to leave a straight fifteen percent."

"But who can figure out fifteen percent in their head?"

"It's actually very simple, Daryl. When the waiter gives you the bill, there will be a 7.5 percent sales tax on it, and you just take that number, multiply it by two, and you have your 15 percent."

"Hey," I said, very impressed, "now that's a good idea!"

"So, why are you suddenly so interested in the subject of tipping?" asked my wife with interest, knowing that I hate to eat out in restaurants and rarely do so.

"I'm not actually," I admitted, "I just thought the math in the article was kinda clever. You know me, the farther I can stay away from a restaurant the better."

Which brings me to my little story (and for those of you who love to eat out in restaurants, I strongly advise you to read no further!).

It was 1966 and I was a freshman at Sacramento City College more or less majoring in goofing off, but in order to come up with enough money to pay my monthly car payment and also have some left over for the big weekend poker games at my fraternity house, I took a job as a busboy on the late shift at what was then a pretty upscale restaurant just off the I-80 freeway (I've forgotten its name after all these years, which is probably best for all concerned).

Anyway, I had never worked in the restaurant business before and I had no idea how hard everyone (the cooks, waitresses, and busboys) all labored at their specific tasks. And if you were one of the waitresses or busboys, you were paid less than the minimum hourly wage (which I think was something like $1.25 an hour back then), so your livelihood basically depended on tips. So, on those rare occasions when I do eat in a restaurant, I try to be a pretty generous tipper, because I saw up close and personal just how often very hard-working waitresses (who share their tips with the busboys) get stiffed. But back to my little story, which is supposed to explain why I for one prefer to eat at home, and not in a restaurant.

One night, with the restaurant I was working at full of patrons and all the help running around like chickens with their heads cut off, I suddenly heard one of the customers screaming at a waitress. Since the table where all the yelling was coming from was one of the ones I was responsible for, I strolled over with a water jug in hand to see what all the commotion was about.

It turned out that a very rude middle-aged man (in the company of a couple of other men who looked like they had had too much to drink, too) was very upset about how his steak had been prepared. The waitress kept offering to take it back to the cook to have it grilled a little longer, but the man was demanding to have a whole new steak, which the waitress agreed to, but only after she had to stand there and be verbally abused for a good five minutes. When the jerk finally called her a particularly offensive name, she began to cry.

I could see the head cook (a man of very few words who ran his kitchen like a military camp) observing all this from the swinging doors which separated his world from the actual restaurant, and it was he who took the plate with the unwanted steak from the tearful waitress when she brought it back to be exchanged.

Wondering what the cook would have to say about all this, I made my way back into the kitchen and from a safe distance, along with the waitress who was still crying, I watched him throw another steak on the fire and carefully cook it to just the right "medium" the customer had demanded. But as the cook flipped the new steak over to grill the other side, I couldn't help but notice his face was just as red as the meat had been when he had first tossed it on the fire, and that his anger was barely under control. Then, just before he was about to place the new steak on a new platter with a new baked potato and new vegetables, I watched in amazement as he unzipped his pants and urinated on it.

Her eyes no longer full of tears, and with a barely contained grin on her face, the waitress took the new platter of food to the customer, who insisted that she stand right where she was until he had taken a nice big bite out of his juicy new steak.

"Now that's more like it!" the man roared to the pleasure of his friends.

So, on those rare occasions when I do find myself in a restaurant, I am not only a generous tipper, but I am also extremely well-behaved, because the very last thing I want to do is get anyone pissed off.

During one of our company's weekly meetings, someone brought up his interpretation of interest-only loans. That opened the door for all of us to chime in with our thoughts and feelings about this relatively new and gaining speed phenomena .The gist of the outcome was that it certainly helps those who only plan on being in a home for a short amount of time. It also helps with qualifying those individuals that otherwise wouldn't qualify for traditional fixed rate programs because of the size of mortgages these days. There was many more points brought up in this conversation that would be too long, but we all concluded that for some it is great and for some it is terrible, only a well informed borrower can make that final decision.

An interest-only loan is just what the title says, you are paying on the interest only part of the loan, and your payment leaves nothing for any principle reduction. For example, suppose you have a $300,000 mortgage and were comparing interest only to fixed rate, and lets further suppose that the interest rate was the same, say 5.5%, fixed rate for 30 years. The fixed rate payment would be $1703.00 and at the same 5.5% interest only option your payment would be $1375.00. So with this example you can see the enthusiasm for this payment being $328.00 less. This does sound very attractive to pretty much everybody, but what happens at some time in the future when the bank says, "enough of this, we want our money back"? Usually that will happen in the third, fifth, seventh or tenth year, depending on the type of loan you signed up for.

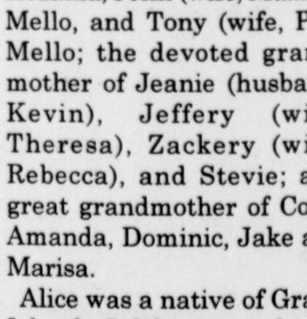

So to be completely informed with all your questions regarding interest only options, I would love to help you and guide you through all your questions. Remember, "Lots of Questions, One Company, One Answer".

Well, I'm back from my Mexico vacation to find the National Hockey League big wigs coming to an agreement to play this year while the same old Giants keep struggling and the Oakland Triple A's continue playing great baseball in Oakland. Hey, did I miss the opening of the football season? Just kidding!

The West Sacramento Little League Junior division All-Stars won the district title, beating Antelope. The team's players are: Paul Drozd, Joe Garcia, Drew Romero, Julien Avila, Bobby Barger, Mike Bowman, Caleb Connely, Nick Coulter, Joe Deaton, Max Jablonsky, Marcus McDaniel and David Megarry. The team is managed by Dale Drozd, with coaches Alec Romero and Mike Bowman.

Courtesy of Janette Vine

The NHL players and owners finally came to terms and are promising their fans that Hockey will be played in 2005. The salary cap was the big issue in negotiations but that elephant was put to sleep. The owners won the battle and it looks like they won't have to pay any player more the $7 million a year. The team's salary cap will be a lowly $30 million give or take $10 mil.

The sad part about the lockout and salary cap is than only a hand full of players earned more than $10 million annually but these are guys that wouldn't agree to take a pay cut. Now they have no choice. But last year the rest of the low-income players suffered though the season with no income while the leagues fans, which pays their salaries, stayed home. The NHL lost millions of dollars but most of all the fans respect. They also lost a guaranteed ESPN contract and their true sponsors took their money and iced it somewhere else! Good Luck to the NHL fans. I personally can't wait for football! Sorry, I did it again!

Kings Korner

The Kings are shopping big time for a couple of free agents after the defection of the big Cat. Mr. Mobley decided to move his talents to the Clippers! Cuttino sprinted away from a $6.7 million contract with the Kings to a big fat $44 million pay day with the Clippers. I'm happy for him because he needs the cash and he won't have to share the basketball with his teammates. He was never a real Kings player because Cuttino always had his own agenda. Bye, Bye Mr. Gato!

The Kings did manage to sign their No. 1 pick from Louisville Francisco Garcia. Garcia can fill in for the Cat but he is a little on the thin side (190 lbs.) while averaging 15.7 points for the Cardinals last season but the young man can shoot the three. Maybe its time for the Kings GM to give the youngsters like Kevin Martin and Francisco Garcia a chance to fill at shooting guard. They both can shoot the lights out of the ball but the $64 million dollar question is - can they play defense?

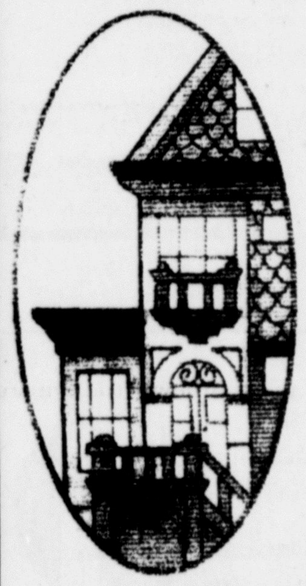

Major League Baseball

The Giants (40-51) took 3 out 4 games from their archrival Dodgers this weekend but their starting pitching staff is in deep water and the bullpen is under water. As bad as the G-Men are playing I can't believe their only 9 games out of first place. San Francisco will have to win the division to make the playoffs because the Western Division is so weak that a second place finish will send the G-Men team home early.

The Giants are still auditioning for a new closer. Tyler Walker had the job but he keeping choking. The kid throws in the upper 90's but he's to scare to throw the ball over the plate. The Giants gave him the chance to win the job twice this season only to watch him blow easy save opportunities. All he lacks in Confidence! Looks like Hawkins will get a shot at trying to save a Giants lead in the ninth. By the way, no Bonds sighting yet.

The Oakland A's (47-44) playing well be they hurt my feeling this week by trading my favorite player ex River Gato, Eric Byrnes, to the Colorado Rockies. I cried for a whole 15 seconds! Byrnes game is what baseball is all about. He's a crazy, wild, reckless player who can hit, run and field and a treat to watch because he loves the game. Eric will do great at Coors Field where the balls fly out of the stadium because of the light air. I predict if he gets his playing time that he'll Mexico was upset 2-1 by the Colombian National team in front of a record crowd of 60,000 in Houston last Sunday afternoon. Mexico was the defending Gold Cup champions but a lucky wild 40-yard kick by Colombia ended up in the Mexican goal on accident disappointing a pro-Mexico crowd. The Panamanians, who beat South Africa 5-3 on penalty kicks in the quarterfinals of the CONCACAF Gold Cup, will move on to the semi-finals on Thursday. Check the Sacramento Bee sports section for television coverage (ch.19 or ESPN2).

Soccer

On Saturday the USA beat Jamaica 3-1 while Honduras outlasted the Costa Rican Nationals 3-2. On Thursday in New Jersey the USA will tangle with a very strong Honduras team and Colombia will play Panama with the winners meeting in the final on Sunday, July 23rd at Giants Stadium.

Boxing

Boxing returns to the Arco Arena on Thursday night with cruiserweight Michael Simms (16-3-1, 13 KO's) taking on Troy Beets (12-6-1, 8 KO's) out of Mississippi.

Promoter Don Chargin has a six-bout card scheduled to start at 7:30 p.m.

Letters to the Editor

Liked Daryl's column

I would like to thank Daryl Fisher for his July 13th column, "Stuck in a hole? First thing to do is stop digging."

Some loyal News-Ledger readers that routinely enjoy Mr. Fisher's anecdotal-type writing may squirm a bit uncomfortably in their chairs when presented with one of his conscience-probing columns concerning a serious issue, and the ill-conceived and ill-executed war being waged in Iraq by the United States of America is such an issue.

I agree with the July 13th column because it is factual, but I prize it even more because Mr. Fisher bolsters these facts with his own life experiences and lessons, especially his combat service in the Vietnam War.

I am proud that a local citizen/writer is of such conviction to be willing to voice what now days seems to have become unpopular and much too rare -- the truth.

AMANDA RIDGE
West Sacramento

Too much fluff

In 2004, the voters of West Sacramento passed a bond measure that called for $52 million in bonds to pay for a comprehensive high school costing between $90 and $100 million. According to the California Department of Education and the California School Board Association, a comprehensive high school is "a regular, standard high school without any fluff."

The administration from the Washington Unified School District is attempting to build a high school that will cost over $150 million, will consist of several small learning communities (SLC's) as well as some community joint use facilities. They have talked about including a Starbucks coffee shop, a Borders bookstore, a $9 million, 900 seat theater, a community library, a community fitness center (pay to use) as well as other items. That all sounds like fluff to me and is not what is supposed to be in a comprehensive high school.

I can understand and accept community joint use facilities such as a competition swim center, and baseball, softball, football and soccer fields. These could be used by the high school and local youth clubs, as well as the city.

I know that members of our current school board and the past board visited several SLC high schools that were all very successful. I understand that at almost each of these schools, they were in districts that also had comprehensive high schools so the students had the choice of attending either the SLC school or the regular schools. I think the SLC's are an excellent idea, but it will take five years or more to build one school and the cost will exceed $150 million. If our district were to go to a neighboring district, get the plans they used to build a new school, i.e., Sheldon High School or Laguna Creek High School, we could have a new high school within 2 to 2 1/2 years and the cost would be between $90 and $100 million. That is exactly what the bond measure we passed in 2004 called for. If I had known that the cost of the school was going to far exceed what the bond measure stated, I would not have voted in favor of it.

Our board members have said the community, as well as themselves, don't want a run of the mill, stamped out out high school. I suggest you take a ride and visit some of the new high schools in the Sacramento, Elk Grove and Folsom areas. I would be more than happy to have a high school in West Sacramento similar to any of those. Especially if we could build it in half the time and save over $50 million dollars. After all, it isn't so much what the school looks like as much as what we do with the school once it is built. We need to invest in our kids and build a school where our teachers can teach and the kids can learn.

I think it is time to stop this nonsense, throw out these small learning community ideas, get the plans from another district and build the school we voted to build in 2004. A comprehensive high school costing between $90 and $100 million dollars. This would not only be done in half the time, but it would also save us somewhere between 50 and 60 million dollars!

LARRY LANGFORD

Get involved

I am writing in response to Dani Langford's letter in the July 13th issue. I, too, was in attendance at the July 7th special board meeting. Dani's quotes by the superintendent were absolutely correct. As a lifelong West Sacramento resident who voted for the measure I am deeply disappointed that my daughter will not get to enjoy the benefits of a new school, her class was to be the first to graduate. While I understand that with every project there is the potential of delay, what I don't understand is why the superintendent is proposing building a $9 million dollar theater for the express purpose of renting it out to bridge the funding gap for a high school that we now do not have enough money to build.

Another pitch by the superintendent was to partner with businesses such as a Borders book/coffee chain (on campus) to also help pay for the school. The moment you let businesses on your campus and open them up to the public you lose a large amount of control. It is hard enough keeping children safe in these times, are you willing to let the superintendent give some of their security away? The answer is really elementary -- build what you can afford. It would appear that our superintendent has a bad case of "mine is bigger than yours." Perhaps our superintendent should look hard at the demographics of the community, we have large pockets of low income areas, although they might be hard to see from the gated community he will soon be residing in. Not everyone is interested in trying to keep up with the Jones by having a designer book store/coffee chain and a tennis club on campus that would require membership. What every parent wants is a safe, secure place for their children to learn in with access to state of the art learning materials.

On a second issue, there is an effort being made to oust not only the RCHS athletic director but also Principal Geivett. This is preposterous. Procedures are not being followed during school board meetings, unfounded accusations are being leveled, there are issues of slander, defamation of character, and people are allowed to get up and malign the individuals accused. In the thick of the finger pointing is a school employee who involved a student in a letter writing campaign and who has also been making decisions involving school monies that is well beyond the scope of their duties. These actions alone call for immediate termination.

At the heart of this are two people (and their families) who have worked tirelessly for their school/community, often on their own time and at their own expense. At this point it is unclear who is driving this inevitable train wreck. Is it a board member with a grudge? Is it an individual in administration trying to justify a $30,000 plus recent raise, or is someone at the very top pulling the strings? The truth will come out, and if it turns out to be nothing more than a modern day witch hunt, there are plenty of community members who will want accountability. Show your support, come to the next board meeting on Thursday, July 28th, at 7 p.m. at city hall.

If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. DINING, TRAVEL & ENTERTAINMENT

HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD ... "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory" is undoubtedly one of THE pictures of the summer season for children AND grownups. It also proves Johnny Depp to be one of our best and most versatile actors. Take a look at the diversity of his successes: "Edward Scissorhands," "What's Eating Gilbert Grape?" "Sleepy Hollow," "Chocolat," "Pirates of the Caribbean" and on and on. He is also known to be one of our most "way-out" personalities. At times he dresses oddly, at times he behaves oddly, and at all times he preserves his private life. However, we do know he has a relationship with Vanessa Paradis, and that his small daughter is named Lily-Rose Melody.

Lucy Liu is busy, busy, busy. After she shoots "The Cleaner" with Cedric the Entertainer, about an FBI agent posing as a waitress and an amnesiac janitor who thinks he's an undercover agent, she goes into "The Devil to Pay," a crime thriller about a single mom who is forced by kidnappers holding her child to rob the bank where she works. ... And to Josephine H. of Chicago. No, Lucy was not born in China. She was born in New York, grew up there and attended NYU. Incidentally, she treats that long, luscious hair with oil and lavender.

George Clooney is my kind of guy. I love his looks and everything about him. I first met George when he was on "ER," but not a big star. He was polite, kind and very self-deprecating — and still is. And big congrats to him for his recent win of the Los Angeles Film Festival's Spirit of Independence Award.

If you watch "E! True Hollywood Story" on the tube, you might want to latch on to the new book "E! True Hollywood Story: The Real Stories Behind the Glitter" edited by Lanford Beard (Chamberlain Bros.) Based on actual transcripts from the series, you can own the stories of the inner lives of your faves. ... And for further summer reading, try "The Perfect Manhattan" by Leanne Shear and Tracey Toomey (Broadway Books). This a lot of fun about a student supplementing her income as a bartender, where she gets a revealing inside look at the New York party circuit.

Rumors rampant, and they never stop about Tom Cruise. "He is, he isn't; he does, he doesn't; he will, he won't." I'm beginning to tire hearing about Mr. Mapother IV (That's his real name: Thomas Cruise Mapother IV). Hopefully, by the time you read this there is other news. And hopefully, it isn't about Paris.

BITS 'N' PIECES: David Arquette and Courteney Cox's little CoCo is the image of her dad. ... Aside to Beatrice G. of Destin, Fla. I think Gwyneth divides her time between the U.S. and Britain. I know her mother, Blythe Danner, still lives in L.A. and New York. ... Joke around the "Hollywoods": in lieu of getting implants, lotsa ladies are getting preggie. ... Aside to Bertha B. of Conifer, Colo. Andy Garcia's full name is Andres Arturo Garcia-Menendez. ... Could there be a rift in the Reese Witherspoon-Ryan Phillipe marriage? Ryan has been seen here and about lately solo on the Hollywood scene. ... Did you know Nicole Kidman's father is a clinical psychologist? At least Nicole doesn't have to look for a "shrink" if need be. ... That was Ashley Olsen hopping out of a big SUV parked in a "No Parking" zone. She hopped back in quickly when she reread the sign. In Hollywood, "celebrity" doesn't mean a thing to parking law enforcers.

"War of the Worlds"

Running time: 117 minutes
MPAA rating: PG-13

"War of the Worlds" may not be Steven Spielberg's worst movie, but it's certainly one of the most disappointing and frustrating films he's made in the past 10 years.

I say this because the middle 40 minutes of the movie is absolutely brilliant filmmaking, and then — PLONK! — the movie stops dead, loses all sense of tension, logic or emotion, and limps pathetically to one of the worst and most implausible endings I've seen.

The film stars Tom Cruise as Ray Ferrier, a New Jersey dockworker (cuz when you think "New Jersey dockworker," you think "Cruise"). Ray is divorced and is in the middle of a weekend visitation with his two kids, Rachel (Dakota Fanning) and Robbie (Justin Chatwin), when a lightning storm transports Martian warriors to their killing machines that have been buried beneath the earth for thousands and thousands of years.

The machines burst out of the ground and start Blowin' Stuff Up Real Good. Ray grabs his kids, steals the only working vehicle in town and speeds away from the carnage toward Boston. Why? I guess because once you've conquered the jewel that is Hoboken, what's the point of attacking Boston? Or something. I don't know. You figure it out — my head hurts.

Now, it takes about a half-hour to get from the beginning of the movie to the first attack, but once the aliens show up, "War of the Worlds" is an amazing piece of filmmaking. It reminded me that when Spielberg is on top of his game, there is no one who can touch him as a director.

The problem, as I said before, is that

after that middle 40 minutes of brilliance, the movie grinds to a halt — and you'll know when it happens the minute you see Tim Robbins, who plays a psycho survivalist who lures Ray and Rachel into the cellar of his farmhouse, which is miraculously spared from destruction by a rampaging hoard of Martian killing machines.

From that point, everything goes south. All the tension and emotion that was building up is lost, and you spend the next 40 minutes wondering when (or if) this movie is going to get good again.

It doesn't.

Q. I have been watching "Texas Justice" for about two years, and I have two questions: Is the judge, Larry Joe Doherty, a real Texan? I was told he was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., and still lives there. My second question is, when he rules for people who live in another state, does he rule under Texas law or the (litigants') state law? — Veneta J.

A. Larry Joe Doherty, one of Texas' most successful lawyers, is, indeed, a native of the Lone Star State. He was born in Houston and lives with his wife and family in Burton on a ranch they turned into a wildlife preserve.

Doherty's decisions are based on the law in the state in which the lawsuit was filed. In other words, if the original suit is filed in Idaho, then Idaho law prevails.

Q. I used to watch "JAG," and as someone who was also born in Iran and came to the United States as a child, I became interested in Catherine Bell, who played Mac (Lt. Col. Sarah MacKenzie). Please advise if she is married, and if so, did she marry someone on "JAG"? Also, does she speak Farsi (the official language of Iran), and is it true she once lived in Japan, and if so, why? — M.H.

A. Catherine Bell was born in London, England. Her mother was Iranian, and Bell learned to speak fluent Farsi from her. She had a successful modeling career in Japan for several years. She is married to American actor/director Adam Beason, whom she met when he was an assistant to director Robert Zemeckis on the film "Death Becomes Her," where Bell was the nude body-double for both Meryl Streep and Isabella Rossellini. Beason later appeared in three episodes of "JAG."

Angie Harmon

Q. I was told that Kevin Sorbo ("Andromeda," "Hercules: The Legendary Journeys") was the original choice for the "Superman" movies before the late Christopher Reeve got the role. But I haven't been able to find anything that proves that that's so. — Joseph McM.

A. Actually, Sorbo was very close to being chosen for the role of Superman in the TV show "Lois & Clark: The New Adventures of Superman." But at the last minute, the producers decided to go with Dean Cain, whom they felt looked more like Clark Kent than Sorbo did.

NOTE: Last week's item about Angie Harmon (ex-"Law & Order") focusing her career on films was filed before confirmation that her pilot for NBC, "Inconceivable," was picked up. Harmon will play Dr. Nora Campbell, a reproductive specialist at a fertility clinic. Her co-star will be Jonathan Cake, who recently played Tyrannus in the miniseries "Empire."

THE CHOPPING BLOCK

by Philomena Corradeno

EGGS ARE ALWAYS IN SEASON

Whether you're entertaining or feeding the family, count on eggs. These powerhouses of nutrition are always in season and always ready and easy to use.

Deviled eggs and egg salads are impressive presentations of hard-cooked eggs. Follow the recommendations of the American Egg Board and you'll always have tender hard-cooked (not boiled) eggs.

Put eggs in a single layer in a saucepan. Cover with tap water to at least an inch above eggs. Bring just to boiling. Remove pan from heat, cover and let stand 15 minutes for large eggs, 18 for extra-large and 12 minutes for medium. Immediately run cold water over eggs or place in ice water till cooled. Gently tap eggs all over on hard surface to crackle shells. Roll eggs between hands to loosen shell, then starting at large end, peel.

The Deviled Eggs can be made even livelier with a few drops of hot pepper sauce added to the filling. The Egg Salad in a Basket is a unique way to serve a favorite, familiar, year-round dish.

LIGHT BUT LIVELY DEVILED EGGS

- 6 hard-cooked eggs
- 2 tablespoons reduced-fat Italian-style salad dressing
- 1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard
- 1 (2-ounce) jar chopped pimientos, drained
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh mushrooms, optional
- 1 tablespoon chopped green pepper

Cut eggs in half lengthwise; remove yolks and set whites aside. Mash yolks with fork. Stir dressing and mustard into yolks. Stir in pimientos, mushrooms and green pepper. Refill whites using 1 heaping tablespoon yolk mixture for each egg half. Chill to blend flavors. Makes 6 appetizer servings.

EGG SALAD IN A BASKET

Crust (Basket)

- 2/3 cup water
- 5 tablespoons butter
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2/3 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
- 3 eggs
- 1 cup shredded Jarlsberg cheese

In 2-quart saucepan, combine water, butter and salt. Bring to boil; add flour all at once and stir until mixture forms a ball. Remove from heat. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well until each egg is completely blended and mixture is smooth. Blend in cheese. Spread evenly on bottom and up side of 9-inch springform pan to height of 2 1/2 inches. Bake 35 minutes at 400 F until golden. Cool in pan on wire rack. When cooled, run spatula around sides of pan to remove crust. Meanwhile, prepare egg salad (recipe follows).

EGG SALAD

- 6 hard-cooked eggs, coarsely chopped
- 4 ounces Jarlsberg cheese, cut in julienne strips
- 1 cup cauliflowerets
- 1 cup fresh peas or thawed frozen peas, optional
- 1 cup sliced celery
- 2 scallions, sliced
- 1/2 cup red bell pepper strips
- 1/2 cup green bell pepper strips
- 1/2 cup low-fat mayonnaise
- 1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard
- Crisp salad greens

In large bowl, combine eggs, cheese, cauliflowerets, peas, celery, scallions and peppers. In small bowl, blend mayonnaise and mustard. Toss into egg mixture. Line crust with salad greens. Spoon egg salad over greens. Chill till ready to serve. Makes 6 servings.

The Sacramento River registered 4 feet 5 inches U. S. gauge at the S. P. bridge yesterday. This indicates a fall of 9 inches since last Thursday afternoon and may mean that the tide was out at the time the reading was taken. It is probable that a Sacramento engineer was right when he advised the City Commisison that they would have to guard, in the future, against salt water from the sea.

Teddy Porter spent yesterday with his relatives from Valley Springs.

On December 13th a baby boy was born to Mrs. J. H. Reuther. Mother and baby are getting along nicely.

Following the resignation of Mrs. C. Hart as treasurer of the Washington Red Cross, Mrs. Mabel Peterson has been appointed to fill her place.

E. O. Steiner is visiting his daughter, Mrs. C. A. Kiff, to stay till after the holidays.

Rev. Harvey Miller of Sacramento preached an eloquent Christmas sermon last night at the local Baptist Church. The edifice was well filled and close attention was paid to his inspiring words.

Give yourself a treat for the Holiday Season. Buy shoes at Caselli's, 527 K Street.

Mrs. Lilian Glasco, who was a resident of Washington for several years, has sued the Western Pacific Railroad in the amount of $40,000 for the death of her husband. It is asserted Theodore J. Glasco was working as an engineer on a crane used in bridge construction. The machinery, it is alleged, was defective, as a result of which the crane engine overturned, falling down an embankment.

Max and Salvador Ortiz are at home from San Francisco for the week-end and may stay over the Christmas holidays.

Lieutenant B. W. Maynard is in a bad pickle between the Anti-Saloon League and the military authorities.

His statement to the league concerning the use of liquor in the aviation division is held in writing, and, it is claimed, was not juggled.

The War Department has him up for court martial for his utterances.

Between two fires he will likely find that the Anti-Saloon League is an intolerant and tyranical baiter of men.

HAIR TONICS MUST NOT BE DRINKABLE, SAYS KRAMER

Yesterday at Washington Prohibition Commissioner Kramer served notice on manufacturers of proprietary medicines, barbers' supplies, and other alcoholic preparations, that they must prepare their products so that they can not be used as beverages after January 16th, when constitutional prohibition becomes effective. "Hair tonics that are hair tonics in name only," the Commissioner said, "must be made undrinkable." The Commissioner said that it is not his purpose to destroy any legitimate industry, but that "a lot of preparations whose principal ingredient is alcohol must be rendered unfit for drinking purposes."

BELOVED WIFE AND DAUGHTER A SACRIFICE TO MOTHERHOOD

Yesterday afternoon the earthly remains of Mrs. Grace Peterson were consigned to their last resting place in St. Joseph's Cemetery.

Her grave, smothered with tokens of esteem from relatives, friends and neighbors, showed how highly she was estimated by those who knew her and her memory will live long in the minds of those who met her in the daily walks of life.

As a wife there was none more faithful and loving. As a daughter she was the personification of filial duty. As a mother she sacrificed her life to bring to earth an heir to the man she promised to love and honor and cherish.

Mrs. Peterson lived her life as if each day was the last and never did she waver from the straight and narrow path. Indeed each act of hers seemed to be done for a purpose and that purpose was the edification, the good example and the uplifting of those around her.

To her aged mother she was the sunlight of life. To her husband she was the magnet of care and attention. To her brothers and sisters she was the guardian angel of straightforwardness.

Last Wednesday a baby was born to her in the Sisters' Hospital in Sacramento, when a Caesarian operation was necessary. From this she quickly rallied, but on Friday she quickly succumbed, leaving her baby girl to replace her.

Yesterday her funeral was private, members of her immediate family only attending, and a few close relatives.

Services were conducted at her mother's home and at the grave by Rev. Father Marcucci. She leaves to mourn her Mrs. Bridget Moss, her mother; Mrs. Sarah Flint, a sister, and two brothers, Benjamin and Edward. Preceding her to the grave were her father, Bernard, and two brothers, Felix and John.

The bereaved husband and baby are bewildered by their great loss.

CARD OF THANKS.

To the many friends and neighbors who assisted us in our bereavement of the past few days we take this opportunity of extending our sincere and heartfelt thanks.

J. N. PETERSON and Baby.

RICE GROWERS MAY BUILD OWN WAREHOUSES

Owing to the dissatisfaction arising from what is claimed to be unsatisfactory service rendered by the public warehouses, the Pacific Rice Growers' Association contemplates building a chain of warehouses for the use of its members in the Sacramento Valley. This decision was reached at a meeting held in Sacramento recently, at which the situation was discussed at length.

The warehouses would be conducted on a co-operative non-profit basis.

J. H. Stephens, President of the association, was authorized to appoint a committee to select and report upon available and suitable sites. Stephens named the following committee: C. L. Donohoe and Ernest V. Eibe, Willows; R. E. Blevins, Colusa; John G. Beekler, Chico; J. L. Harlan, Woodland.

In view of the fact that most of the present warehouse properties have all the business they can handle, it is not believed there will be much opposition to the plan of the rice growers.

CHRISTMAS TREE TONIGHT AT LOCAL COMMUNITY CHURCH

At the Community Church tonight the children of the Washington Sunday School will hold a Christmas festival which will consist of a splendid entertainment and a distribution of the usual presents that go with such an event.

The affair is being arranged and will be conducted by Miss Pearl Moser and Miss Clara Stockton, both leaders in religious work in the community.

The program arranged for the evening follows:

Welcome, Miss Ruth Rickard.

Dialogue, "Christmas Memories." Clara Conrad, Georgia Mathena, Bernice Butters.

Recitation, "The King's Birthday," Gladys Colbert.

Recitation, "Christmas Day," Margaret Dupzyk.

FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED FOLLOWING WOMAN'S CRIES FOR HELP

Last Sunday morning Mrs. D. W. Boyd was aroused about daybreak by the muffled cries of a woman calling for help in the neighborhood of the circus headquarters in West Sacramento.

Arising, Mrs. Boyd saw a large touring car near the West Sacramento headquarters with two men, one in the car and the other on the roadway.

The man in the car was overheard to say, "Come on, we'll get rid of her quick," or words to that effect.

The car started southward through West Sacramento and Mrs. Boyd heard no more.

Judging by the woman's cries it seemed to Mrs. Boyd as if the woman was gagged.

Constable Buckingham was advised and searched the neighborhood, but found nothing unusual.

RECORD PRICE FOR VALLEY RICE

Chico, Dec. 19.—What is declared to be a new record for rice values was set here yesterday in the sale of approximately 60,000 sacks of rice to the Sperry Flour Company for $7.70 a hundredweight.

The rice was sold by H. O. Jacobsen, the producer, and the crop came from the Parrott Investment Company's large grant near here.

This is said to be the largest single sale of rice ever made in California. Jacobson had about 2000 acres under cultivation this year, but plans to increase his rice acreage to 5000 acres next year.

RIVERBANK SCHOOL CLOSING WAS BRIGHT EVENT

Saturday night last in Riverbank the community turned out en masse to witness the closing exercises arranged by the pupils under the guidance of the teachers.

The piece de resistance was a cantata named "Santa's Surprise," and was so well rendered that it brought down the house.

Songs and recitations filled in to show how well the pupils of the school are doing.

A Christmas tree, too, lent zest to the entertainment and for each and every one of the children there was something placed thereon by the teachers.

The parents of the district appreciated this all the more because it was not expected, the expense being divided between the three teachers.

Following the exercises the crowd mingled and started an impromptu dance which wound up at a late hour.

It was an enjoyable evening for teachers, parents and pupils.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Pat Colburn in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Pat Colburn be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on Aug. 4, 2005, at 8:30 a.m., in Dept. 11, Superior Court of California, County of Yolo, 812 Court St., Woodland, CA 95695.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a "Request for Special Notice" (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250.
